

No Stress Midwest

No Stress Midwest "Create Your Own Job" Announcement

No Stress Midwest Mission Statement:

No Stress Midwest is a technical soccer training business that offers a unique approach to training the current youth athlete. We create a "no stress" environment while also offering unique and specialized training tailored to the individual player or team. Today's youth athlete is under a tremendous amount of pressure between club and high school soccer, striving to get into college with good grades, studying, wanting to make good friends and have a rich social life and it can get to be a lot. In many cases, young athletes end up resenting the game they love and the people associated with it. At No Stress Midwest we want to prove to our clients that you can have fun working hard and getting better by creating unique training environments customized to the player. We feel that not only are we able to get the most out of the individual by creating a "No Stress" environment, we are also teaching them fundamentals that they can carry off the field and apply in their life.

Interested in being a part of the No Stress Midwest family, but don't see a job announcement that speaks to your gifts and talents? Submit your idea for what position you believe would be a good addition to our team!

If you or someone you know is interested and would like to apply, please contact Bryan Turner at: bryan@nostressmidwest.com